Analyze and Compare

The Microsoft Copilot procure a straightforward yet lackluster design. It also contains grammatical errors, for example, my email, instead of, "jbalramil@addu.edu.ph" it placed, "jalramil@addu.edu.ph" but overall, it created a rather direct and easy to read resume. For the other LLM, the Replit AI procured a creative result. This is to be expected as Replit AI is designed and made this way to establish more creativity and other elements in the context of designing. It highlighted the needed parts, but I think there are some spaces left that needs to be filled as it feels like a white elephant especially in the skills section. It is possible to put more elements or creativity, or if in a minimalistic view, enlarging the skills may have been also viable. They are both compelled to stay true of being professional especially that resumes are built for formal information that needs to be delivered. Overall, both AI produced an acceptable one page resume, as both AI have their own programming and way of delivering aspects. The results of this prompts passed but is below average for my standards.

Criteria	LLM #1 - Microsoft Copilot	LLM #2 - Replit AI
Structure	Straightforward, it's easy to read, and there's no holes or white spaces.	The structure is creatively placed, but spaces were present with its contents.
Clarity	The words are clear, however there are a couple of small mistakes from the wordings and other spellings	The words are fair, there are a number of words that are barely readable, but I point out to the design as it did not blend with the color of the text but rather contrasted the color to establish a highlight.
Formatting	The format is direct, followed the one page and did not waste much space at all.	It has some difficulty to fill in spaces, especially in the skill section, but overall it remained consistent for its design and format.
Overall Quality	8 / 10	8 / 10

Refined Prompt for LLM #1

Refine the resume by putting more spice to the skills section. By explaining what these are. The same goes for the other sections

I've already refined your resume by adding creative explanations to the skills and other sections, giving them more depth and interest. If you'd like me to add even more flair or adjust the tone further, feel free to ask!

Refined Prompt for LLM #1

Are you able to deal with the white spaces I found in the skills section? (Its either by enlargement of the fonts or add elements in that part) and other than that, make the words more clear and concise.

   3 actions

The issue is 9 skills in a 2-column grid — the last item sits alone, leaving a blank space. I'll switch to a 3-column layout (9 items fits perfectly) and tighten up the wording throughout.

    4 actions

That's looking much cleaner. The skills section now fills perfectly in a 3-column grid — all 9 skills line up evenly with no blank space. Here's a summary of what changed:

- Skills — Switched from 2 columns (which left a gap) to 3 columns, so all 9 skills fill the grid neatly. Also split "Active Listener / Empathy for Counselling" into two distinct, cleaner entries.
- Education — Separated Junior and Senior High School into individual lines for clarity.
- Projects & Experience — Tightened the descriptions to be more direct and impactful, removing filler wording.
- Achievements — Simplified "Obtained honorifics during high school" to the more direct "High School Graduate — With Honors."

Reflection

1. Which LLM performed better and why?
2. What differences did you observe?
3. What improvements did you make in your final resume?
4. What did you learn about prompting?

The LLM that performed better in my personal opinion is the Replit AI. Perhaps it is simply because of the design making. I can concur that it might be biased as Microsoft Copilot is not built for designing but to the context of the information and the task they are given. Both LLM performed well however both LLMs also performed mistakes and better in some contexts. The difference I observed is that Microsoft Copilot directly provided the resume with ease, but I can see that there are spelling errors and mistakes, thus, chipping away a point. Replit AI however, competed with the design and it procured well, however, there are texts that are barely readable and the resume contained unnecessary or fillable white spaces. Thus, in this case, I removed a point. Overall, I made both LLM enhanced their flaws, and they followed it, however, Copilot did not change the wrong or misspelled words, thus, I take Replit AI as the winner.
